

Art Market News: African art makes it mark

Colin Gleadell on the upcoming fair and sale dedicated to African art, and rising star Meshac Gaba.

Eugenio Re Rebaudengo, the 20---something---year---old son of renowned Italian collector, Patrizia Sandretto Re Rebaudengo, is to launch a website of specially curated art exhibitions in which the works will be for sale. ARTUNER opens for business on Saturday with photographic prints by Luigi Gherra, an important 20th--- century Italian photographer, whose work will also be shown at Frieze by the Matthew Marks Gallery from New York. During the online exhibition, the prints will be available at a reduced, “insider”, price of between £4,000 and £17,000 each. Future exhibition subjects are not yet known, but Rebaudengo promises a variety of work in different mediums at affordable prices.
